Special Properties Real Estate Services, a Saddle River real estate brokerage, has expanded to a pair of new offices, it announced recently.

The brokerage, which specializes in the marketing and selling of luxury properties, has opened new sites in Mahwah and Franklin Lakes, it said in a news release last week.

"The expansion builds on the brokerage's 25 years of customer-centric focus and sales success, where, since 2000, more than $1 billion of sales were completed of homes valued over $1 million, giving the company top market share position," Ilija Pavlovic, CEO and president, said in a prepared statement. "We are excited about the potential of bringing this local, boutique real estate brokerage, with so much experience and unique perspective and philosophy, to more of northern Bergen County."

In addition, the Bergen County firm has bolstered its affiliation with Christie's International Real Estate, it said.

"Our relationship with Christie's International Real Estate has spanned more than 20 years and has provided our clients with the support of highly trained and qualified representation on both the buy and sell side," Vicki Gaily, marketing director, said in a statement. "The cultivation of our amazing staff of top real estate professionals, the ongoing development of our unique marketing programs and our affiliation with a powerhouse brand like Christie's International Real Estate is a constant advantage."
